Concussion Information Sheet

A concussion is a brain injury and all brain injuries are serious. They are caused by a bump, blow, or jolt to the head, or by a blow to another part of the body with the force transmitted to the head. They can range from mild to severe and can disrupt the way the brain normally works. Even though most concussions are mild, all concussions are potentially serious and may result in complications including prolonged brain damage and death if not recognized and managed properly. In other words, even a "ding" or a bump on the head can be serious. You can't see a concussion and most sports concussions occur without loss of consciousness. Signs and symptoms of concussion may show up right after the injury or can take hours or days to fully appear. If your child reports any symptoms of concussion, or if you notice the symptoms or signs of concussion yourself, seek medical attention right away.

Symptoms may include one or r
Headaches	<ul> <li>Feeling sluggish or slowed down</li> </ul>	Nervousness or anxiety
"Pressure in head"	Feeling foggy or groggy	Irritability
Nausea or vomiting	Drowsiness	More emotional
Neck pain	Change in sleep patterns	Confusion
Balance problems or dizziness	Amnesia	Concentration or memory problems
Blurred, double, or fuzzy vision	"Don't feel right"	(forgetting game plays)
Sensitivity to light or noise	Fatigue or low energy	Repeating the same question/comment
	Sadness

Signs observed by teammates, parents and coaches include:
Appears dazed	Slurred speech
Vacant facial expression	Shows behavior or personality changes
Confused about assignment	Can't recall events prior to hit
Forgets plays	Can't recall events after hit
Is unsure of game, score, or opponent	Seizures or convulsions
Moves clumsily or displays incoordination	Any change in typical behavior or personality
Answers questions slowly	Loses consciousness

What can happen if my child keeps on playing with a concussion or returns too soon?

Athletes with the signs and symptoms of concussion should be removed from play immediately. Continuing to play with the signs and symptoms of a concussion leaves the young athlete especially vulnerable to greater injury. There is an increased risk of significant damage from a concussion for a period of time after that concussion occurs, particularly if the athlete suffers another concussion before completely recovering from the first one. This can lead to prolonged recovery, or even to severe brain swelling (second impact syndrome) with devastating and even fatal consequences. It is well known that adolescent or teenage athlete will often under report symptoms of injuries. And concussions are no different. As a result, education of administrators, coaches, parents and students is the key for student athlete's safety.

If you think your child has suffered a concussion: Any athlete even suspected of suffering a concussion should be removed from the game or practice immediately. No athlete may return to activity after an apparent head injury or concussion, regardless of how mild it seems or how quickly symptoms clear, without medical clearance. Close observation of the athlete should continue for several hours. The new "Zackery Lystedt Law" in Washington now requires the consistent and uniform implementation of long and well-established return to play concussion guidelines that have been recommended for several years: "a youth athlete who is suspected of sustaining a concussion or head injury in a practice or game shall be removed from competition at that time" and "may not return to play until the athlete is evaluated by a licensed heath care provider trained in the evaluation and management of concussion and received written clearance* to return to play from that health care provider".

Remember, it is better to miss one game than miss the whole season. When in doubt, the athlete sits out.
